

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES

BOOK OF THE PLAY

Of "Quince Adams Sawyer," Which is Coming to the Grand, Selling Below Cost By Special Arrangement of Manager Farland.

Manager R. A. Farland, or the Traders' Grand, 100 Main Street, has made arrangements with Nusbaum's book store, at 308 Main street, to sell the book at $1.00, or $1.25, or $1.50 less than the regular price. The regular copy of the book will be $1.50, plus postage. The regular retail price of the book is $1.50, but will be sold at the low price of 50 cents, until the lot is gone. The books are now come and a great bargain.

The arrangements were made by manager Farland in anticipation of the coming of the play to the Grand, and were to be open house on March 10. The play is eliminated from the program of New England's rural life that has met more success and the sale of thousands of more copies than any other like novel published may be said to have been timed run at the Boston theater and was the most successful production ever staged there in years.

QUINCE ADAMS SAWYER

The scenic splendor of "Quince Adams Sawyer," which will open here March 10, 1904, in the Grand Opera house, is very elaborate, and typical of the production. The managers of the play were determined that nothing should mar the gaiety of the country, and so planned no expense, and the result is evident in the stage settings, costumes, lighting, sets, and all else.

MARY EMERSON, in "His Majesty and the Maid," called the best New England play ever written. The review has invariably been, "Because it's different." The critics say that the play is the most natural the people are just beginning to understand.
